20 NOV Parsimony – An Open Source Web App Management System

Parsimony is an open source application which functions similar to content management systems but offers more and allows us to create any type of apps.

It brings the design, development and content creation/editing to the same interface.

Using its web-based database designer, we can create custom tables and even create custom modules (that can be inserted into web pages) using the data in these tables.

Whether it is a blog, an HR app or anything, Parsimony is capable of creating it only with drag 'n' drops.

There is a permission-based user management system which eases granting the necessary rights to each user.

The application is built with PHP-MySQL, has a multilanguage interface and supports theming.